DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1,2 and 5-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jarrell et al in view of Stautner.

Jarrell discloses a system for predicting the servicing time for components of a mechanical system (see paragraph 11 for a discussion of trending). Jarrell states in paragraphs 51,58 and 89 that the system can be applied to any mechanical system using the proper parameters. Stautner is a pulse tube cooler with a regenerator, a cold heat exchanger and a thermal buffer tube which monitors the temperature of the cold heat exchanger and the load to ensure proper functioning. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of applicant's invention from the teaching of Stautner to modify the servicing prediction system of Jarrell et al by using temperature of the cold heat exchanger or the thermal load to determine the proper functioning of the device and ensure servicing at the proper time. In regard to claims 6 and 7, the predetermined servicing time and the frequency of the cryocooler are seen as design parameters that are well within the scope of the ordinary practitioner in the art, when presented with the above reference, to determine the most efficient servicing schedule and to provide efficient cooling while the cryocooler is functioning.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 3 and 4 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

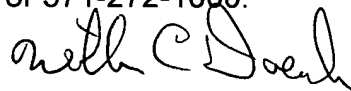

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Rossi et al show a diagnostic system for a cooling system. Chase, Oh et al, and Nelson show control systems for cryocoolers. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to William C.
